SEARCH FOR [CITY - LINCOLN]

NOTES:

1. Player Maintenance Title + Subnav - Bar will remain on all pages, in the same place.

Initially will contain only "Add a player" button, but as the end-user dives deeper into player management move buttons will be added in a "reverse breadcrumb" order from right to left with new additions appearing on the left.

2. Player Lookup - Now will consist of single search (no more 'advanced' search).

Every field will be optional and will accept partial entries. On the back-end the query engine will determine which fields have entries and only query on those fields.

Also note there is now an ability to include archived players in the search results (activated by checkbox)

3. Recent Searches - A list containing the latest search entries and their associated criteria. This will allow for repeatative tasks and queries to be re-run without having the need to re-type each time. For now these will be newest at the top. Future iterations could contain some type of "favorites" management.

NOTES:

1. Search results - Results will behave much in the same manner they do now: in grid fashion in a fixed-height scrollable window.

The search results pane will now display the search terms at the top of the table as well as remain in the fields in the player lookup table.

NOTE: when the fields are cleared and left empty, the default descriptor needs to re-appear. E.g. if someone starts typing in the e-mail field, then leaves that field (onblur), the prompt of "E-MAIL" needs to reappear in that field. Like before the default values will result in a non-query of that field.

NCOA Status
Last Update: 10/09/2010

NOTES:

Player Maintenance Title + Subnav - When a player is selected two new buttons will appear: new search & back to search results.

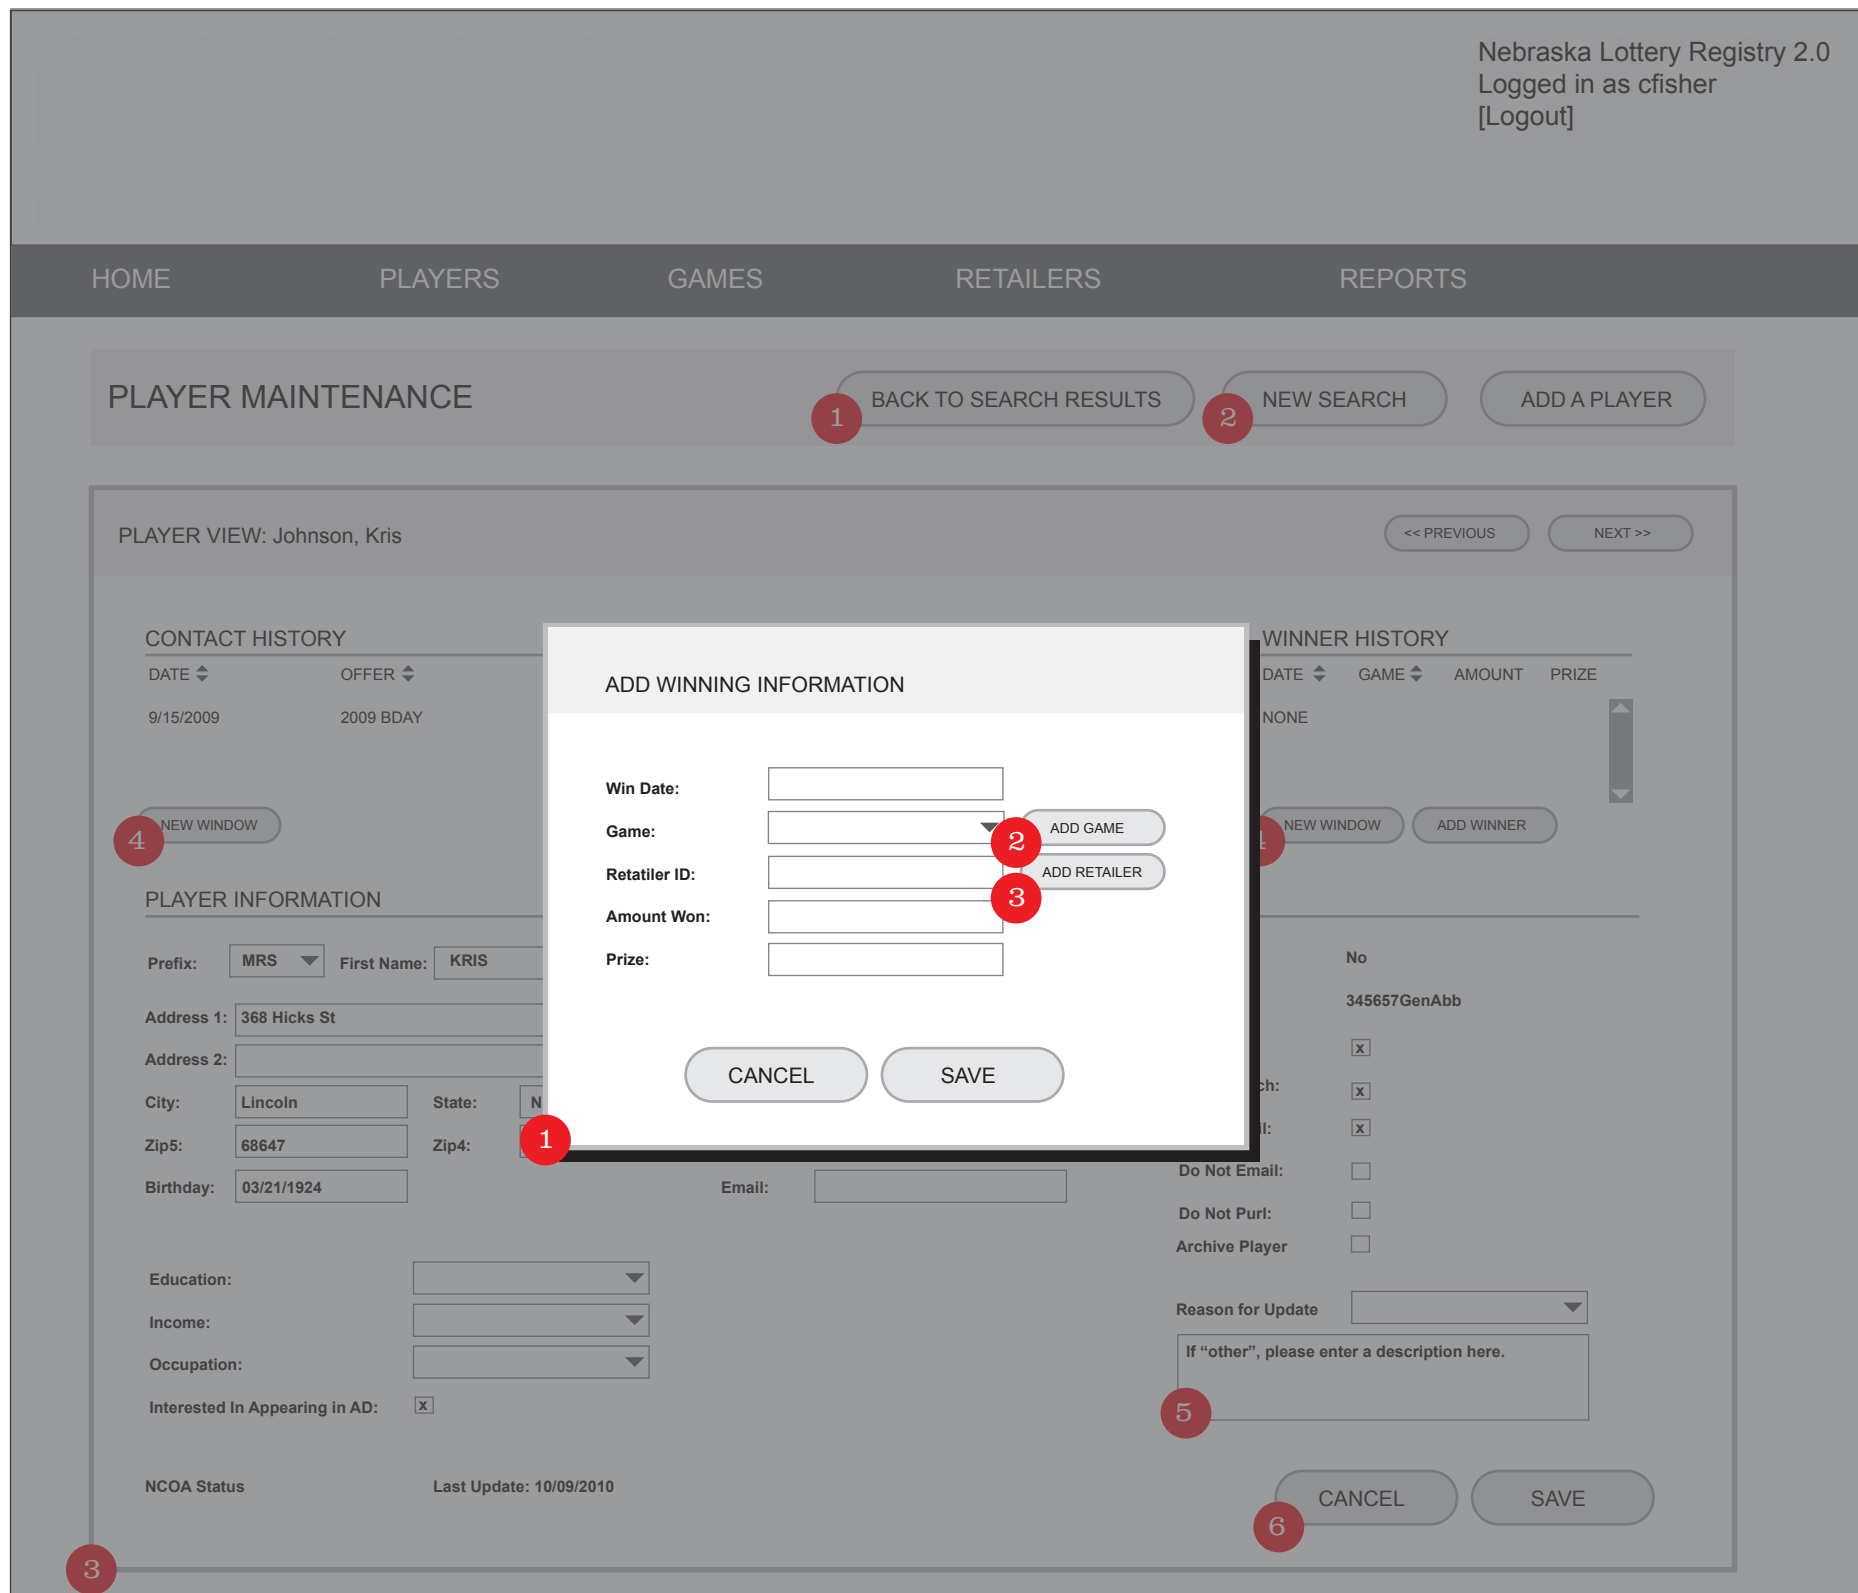

1. New search returns the end-user to the blank search form page that also contains recent searches.
2. Back to search results returns the user to the previous window which contained the scrollable grid of search results
3. Player View (player detail)- This view replaces (entirely) the search results grid from before the player was clicked on. Ideally this would happen without a page refresh and buttons from 1 and 2 above would appear as well. (jQuery?)

Player view is similar information to before but laid out slightly differently and in most cases all in one place verseus multiple screens in the past.

Contact History, Response History, Winner History areas will consist of fixed-size frames containing pertinent grid info. The frames will be scrollable and the grids will be sortable as indicated.

In the "winner history" frame, there will be a list containing the players winning history. These entries will be editable simply by clicking on them.

4. New Window Buttons - These buttons will fire a fresh window opening of a grid displaying the same information. This window will be read only and needs no other functionality than window chrome for closing any windows opened in this manner. The idea is to recycle the same grid logic, but allow the end-user to via large/long lists in an easier fashion.
5. If a user selects "other" as a reason for the update, a textbox will appear (otherwise hidden) for them to enter in a specific description.
6. Save or Cancel buttons will either save and close viewer simply close the view, respectively. The resulting action will return the end-user to the previous search results, same as if they clicked on #1 "back to search results"

NOTES:

1. Add winning information modal - Clicking on “add a winner” from a player view will spawn a modal window containing fields to associate a winning entry to that particular player.

Saving or Canceling will either save and hide the modal or simply hide the modal, respectively.

2. Add game button - In the event a game doesn't exist yet, clicking on this button will take the end-user to a new modal (maintaining state and storing any field entries already entered). Once the game is added in the new game modal, the end user will then be returned to the “add winning information” modal.

NOTE: when returned to the “add winning information” modal from the “add a game” modal, any fields previously entered before leaving will now reappear. e.g. if the end-user had already entered in a “win date” before clicking on “add game”. When the user returns, their entry for “win date” will be pre-populated.

3. Add retailer button - In the event a retailer doesn't exist yet, clicking on this button will take the end-user to a new modal (maintaining state and storing any field entries already entered). Once the retailer is added in the new game modal, the end user will then be returned to the “add winning information” modal.

NOTE: when returned to the “add winning information” modal from the “add a retailer modal, any fields previously entered before leaving will now reappear. e.g. if the end-user had already entered in a “win date” before clicking on “add retailer”. When the user returns, their entry for “win date” will be pre-populated.

NOTES:

1. Adding a game modal - This window appears when a player winning record is being added but the game needing to be associated isn't created yet. Once the "add a game" button is clicked
2. Date Picker (jQuery?)
3. Save & Cancel buttons- Saving or Canceling will either save and hide the modal or simply hide the modal, respectively. On hiding this modal, it will return the user to the previous "add winning information" modal so the end-user can continue adding winning player information.

NOTE: Form & functionality from this modal will be replicated/reused in the games management area.
